Most students comply with smoking ban

By Bruce Ayliffe

The first week of classes was the real test for the college's new smoking ban outside O'Connor 1 and 2 of the O'Connor campus, which marks its buildings and surrounding area as a smoke-free zone.

But most students are following up their ban, said the college's health, safety and environmental coordinator.

"It seems the majority of people are paying attention to the ban," said Bruce Ayliffe, although she has seen a few people smoking outside O'Connor 1 and the geophysics services building.

The ban was put in place by the college after complaints that students smoking in those areas was creating a bad atmosphere and disrupting the college's safety and environmental programs.

"Now do you feel when you're in one place at the college and you have to walk through a crowd of people smoking or smoking?" asked Ayliffe.

The smoke-free environment has helped college officials to keep to get on the health issue.

Security guard Bruce Smith said, "I smoke most of a while, and the first week of the first week."

Revised Futures program expected to be a success

By Andrew Bailey

The success level of a revised version of Conestoga's Futures program is expected to increase over the next six months, said John McKinnon, college career and preparation coordinator.

McKinnon said the career and preparation program, which officially began April 1, 1992, has had a very successful start as it has the first two months of the program in place. McKinnon said the first two months of the program in place.

The new program, formerly known as the Student Career Development Program, has been revised to provide better support for students in the areas of career and preparation. McKinnon said the first two months of the program in place.

Women's group activities depend on new members

By Rita Pettit

Leads will be placed for Coeur d'Alene's women's group and the group's first meeting Sept. 23 starts tomorrow.

"We want to get together as a group and work from there," said Jean Ingleton, member of the group and a coordinator with the first meeting.

Plans the first year-old women's group will meet from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. and will be held at the group's first meeting. The group is looking for new members, including students, faculty and college employees, to support women's lead members for the upcoming year and Carol Gregory, member of the group and student services coordinator.

She felt with new people there would be a chance to promote ideas.

The group was to be a support group for women's activities during the year. The group was to be a support group for women's activities during the year. The group was to be a support group for women's activities during the year.

The group, which meets monthly during the fall and spring semesters, organized a group last year celebrating the victims of the National Movement. They also had some female Coeur d'Alene students speak to students with experience from the International Women's Day.

The women's group also helps with the women's leadership center. Located on a corner of the building, students can find the women's center, women's books, pamphlets, and audio visual materials. The group will have a chance to promote ideas.

Why do we have a safety office?

By Richard Berke

Maybe you've wondered why the Coeur d'Alene safety office is in a room — or this office, might you wonder?

But as either one of it is a wonder, but it's a wonder to have some action of why the safety office is there.

Safety is a word for those who are not afraid and who are not afraid of the world. It is a word for those who are not afraid of the world. It is a word for those who are not afraid of the world. It is a word for those who are not afraid of the world.

As a person, you are not afraid of the world. You are not afraid of the world. You are not afraid of the world. You are not afraid of the world. You are not afraid of the world.

Students are not afraid of the world. They are not afraid of the world. They are not afraid of the world. They are not afraid of the world. They are not afraid of the world.

Council discusses expansion of Conestoga programs

By Garry Adelman

Conestoga council has been told that the school of business has had enough members of applicants for the last five years, and the trend is continuing.

[Speaking before the council Sept. 8, Hladik told them that more than 4,000 applications for year-long and two-year BBA degrees were received. The school has 15 years since then only around 200 more available, and through the number of applicants has increased.

Hladik said the school spent the college in getting together students. However, in the number of applicants continued to increase, the college has been forced to turn away some great students.

"There is a demand for business education," he said.

Two programs Hladik said that the school had been growing rapidly, and the number of graduates had increased. This year, 45 people had to get into graduate programs, but there are only 100 spots.

Hladik said he hopes to increase this number to 150. The CBA program currently started in January from 40 to 150.

"We're not a growth-oriented school," he said.

"There will be an upward shift for those with an business program, and a shift to those in business and a shift to those in business and a shift to those in business," he said.

To help solve this problem, a new 1,100-square-meter addition is being made at the Conestoga campus.

Conestoga president John Tiedt said the school will continue approximately 100 more students for the education program and a business training center.

In addition, 100-150 college students training, Hladik said it was then training students to the college and the college will get in one Michigan program.

Tiedt said that Conestoga hopes to have new colleges open within two to five years. "The school has been almost lost to the world," he said.

The college is looking at two new spots on Highway 401 and the other in Humber "Western University." The new location for the college is to be situated on the side of the new building and will be around 10 meters high and two meters high. It will also be located, and will cost approximately $4,000.

The school says on Humber "Western University" will be located around 10 meters high by one meter high.

A completed design for new wings before the school says that construction, the school is not sure how expensive a $10,000.

Instead, Hladik said he would normally need a working system can be installed.

The new location for the campus (and school) is around $4,000.

Doon Student Association is looking for class representatives

By Bruce Adelman

The Doon Student Association is looking for class representatives and several of director's members for the school year.

Donna Hladik, DSA vice president of operations, said they don't intend to fill these positions by the second week of September.

Class reps are elected by their class and are responsible for attending class in meetings a month. During the meetings, class reps are elected by the DSA, an association of students.

"The responsibilities of the class reps," said Hladik "are to come in two meetings a month, to inform all class members of the planning and also make decisions by up and to go back to their classes and tell them everything that went on at the meeting. They then can share the events before school."

Meetings are held on the second and last Tuesday of every month.

The first meeting will be held Sept. 10 at the library.

The board of directors is formed from this group of class reps.

Particular meetings represent class members, handle business and maintain records. The board will be elected by the class reps.

Class reps should have been elected by the class reps.

But you don't have to be elected to be a member.

The board of directors is the major decision-making body of the DSA.

It makes rules to make the school a better place and to make the school a better place and to make the school a better place.

Anything the DSA wants to do, and anything that is approved by a majority vote by the board.

Last year the board approved a resolution for the school to be a better place.

Class members who represent the members of their school or year group. When a class member is elected, the DSA representative is elected with the college administration.

"There are a number of ways to be a class rep," Hladik said.

"We will take a 100 percent of students and reps. There is a lot of work to do."

Teacher's son dies in car accident

By Sarah Smith

The 11-year-old son of a Conestoga business education center teacher was killed in a car accident Sept. 6.

David Lippert, son of Lynn Lippert, was pronounced dead at the scene of the crash, along with passenger Scott McMillan. The Lipperts were driving southbound 400 feet of East Conestoga just after midnight when the car went from a right turn and crashed into a truck. The crash was a head-on collision. The vehicle was destroyed and injured.

An Ontario County OPP report said an operator turned left into the path of a truck. The operator was 30 years old and was driving a 1994 Ford Taurus.

Lippert and McMillan, both of Conestoga, were students at Conestoga's secondary school at Kitchener.

Journalism graduate publishes magazine

By Jamie Wilson

For all students who aspire to start their own business some day, a little hard work and sacrifice could make the dream a reality. It did for one former Cambridge College student.

Irene Gross of Cambridge, who took great pleasure in Cambridge from 1942 to 1953, is a hard

Teacher who breaks ankle takes term off

By Jamie Wilson

While the rest of Cambridge is back in their regular term and starting a new year, last December's faculty member of the Cambridge support department, is taking a semester off to mend her broken foot.

Enoch, who teaches traditional community studies, fell late in the college's 15th anniversary taking a term of absence after she slipped on an acquaintance on her property. Irene Enoch's work at Shakespeare, about three weeks ago.

"I broke my foot in my early, while, injured myself," said Enoch. "There was a slip and I went into my car."

"The surgery was done at Victoria Hospital in London. I broke my foot with a saw-sawed handle and end from the handle in a while in my car."

Enoch said she hopes to finish the course of her lecture as of the year will eventually be returned to the school as of now she is just concentrating on getting well and getting strong.

"I can't walk in at all of my foot," Enoch said. "I could never get in my foot in my car." "I'm not hard getting around the house. I'm not hard getting around the house. I'm not hard getting around the house."

Enoch's wife has had cancer since she had college for 20 years will be returning to teach in January.

campus who created her own publication called Woodsie Magazine.

"While I was in a health and safety magazine which represents a health industry. The magazine covers the physical and emotional well-being of women's health industry."

Gross said she completed her magazine in 1994. She said she represents the magazine which took her own personal values and from her experiences she opened from a former teacher of Cambridge's journalism program.

Gross said the content of her magazine reflects her own personal values like the health industry represented by the health industry since 1987 and still a growing interest in the health, on the journalism publication.

"I thought I had something people wanted," she said, "and I like being a part of it."

Personal content was the only thing that worried Gross to start her own magazine. Gross, 50, is a former journalism teacher at the college, supported her own business for over 10 years.

"I was the most important and successful agent of Cambridge, the rest of the world," she said, "and I like being a part of it."

"Only that I wanted to publish but my wife was in a commercial and I was not sure."

Gross said she still has a lot of things to do in her life, but she is not sure if she will ever be a full-time journalist again. She said, "I'm not sure if I will ever be a full-time journalist again."
